Dr. Guido Renggli, the "Father of Timesharing" is Founder

For Immediate Release

July 6, 2005 (New York City, NY) – American Friends of AYSSF is now set up to accept donations under its 501 (c) (3) status. The primary objective Academy of Youth Sport and Scholastics Foundation is to provide physical and mental training through sport and a scholastic education to boys and girls 11 to 18 years old. The AYSSF was founded by Dr. Guido Renggli, the Father of Timesharing.

"We are reaching out to the shared resort industry to support this important Foundation," said Jan Willem van Bergen Henegouwen, President and CEO of Willem Alexander Enterprises which specializes in the fields of tourism, real estate, financing, development and timesharing. Dr. Guido Renggli has been named the Father of Timesharing and now his innovative vision is devoted to helping children from deprived family backgrounds, who without such support would find it difficult to become productive adults that make a positive contribution to the development of their country."

Van Bergen, whose own company is a major sponsor of AYSSF, says for the time being, the Academy will take no more than 20-30 children a year and carry no more than 100 students at time. In the future, goals call from the Academy to build its own educational facility, including a small campus for those who do not have an adequate home environment. The Academy also helps its students to find appropriate jobs, once they have finished high school.

AYSSF is a non-profit foundation and exists from donations. For each child, the Academy needs at least US$1000 a year for school fees, clothing, meals and medical cares. Children may be sponsored for $1000/year. Other donations are also encouraged as preliminary projections for the high school campus and trade school indicate that investments of approximately US$1.5 million will be required.
